

JULIUS CAESAR: ACT 3 YEAR 5 AND YEAR 6 PUNCTUATION REVISION

Exercise 1: Read the passage below and add in the following punctuation.

Possessive apostrophe ‘ Question mark ? Contracted apostrophe ‘

Full stop . Exclamation mark ! Comma ,

Elipsis... Speech marks “ ”

ACT 3

So the scene is set. Julius Caesar makes his way towards the senate will it be for the very last time He seems in a good mood, he is almost...happy. He has many things to do. At the senate citizens make petitions to him. That means that they are asking for something. Every citizen of Rome has the right to ask Caesar for a favour, but whether Caesar grants their wishes is another thing entirely

brutus and cassius are a little afraid that someone will tell Caesar about the plot to murder him, especially when a Roman called Popilius walks up to Cassius and says

I wish your enterprise today may thrive

Cassius pretends he doesn't know what Popilius means

“What enterprise Popilius He asks nervously, but Popilius just walks away smiling. How does he know what is going on!!!

Then Popilius walks towards Caesar to speak with him.

Cassius tells Brutus,

He wished our enterprise today would thrive, I fear we've been discovered Brutus and Cassius watch the conversation very nervously. Is Popilius about to spill the beans and ruin everything?

Caesar laughs And both Brutus and Cassius breathe a sigh of relief. That was close!

suddenly, mark Antony, the best friend of Caesar and the only one who might stand in their way... leaves! Things are suddenly going the way of the conspirators

JULIUS CAESAR: ACT 3 YEAR 5 AND YEAR 6 PUNCTUATION REVISION ANSWERS

ACT 3

So the scene is set. Julius Caesar makes his way towards the senate.. will it be for the very last time? He seems in a good mood, he is almost...happy. He has many things to do. At the senate, citizens make petitions to him. That means that they are asking for something. Every citizen of Rome has the right to ask Caesar for a favour, but whether Caesar grants their wishes is another thing entirely.

Brutus and Cassius are a little afraid that someone will tell Caesar about the plot to murder him, especially when a Roman called Popilius walks up to Cassius and says

"I wish your enterprise today may thrive"

Cassius pretends he doesn't know what Popilius means

"What enterprise Popilius?" He asks nervously, but Popilius just walks away smiling. How does he know what is going on!!!

Then Popilius walks towards Caesar to speak with him.

Cassius tells Brutus,

"He wished our enterprise today would thrive, I fear we've been discovered" Brutus and Cassius watch the conversation very nervously. Is Popilius about to spill the beans and ruin everything?

Caesar laughs! And both Brutus and Cassius breathe a sigh of relief. That was close!

Suddenly, Mark Antony, the best friend of Caesar and the only one who might stand in their way... leaves! Things are suddenly going the way of the conspirators!